I remember the dry, golden Sonoma summer heat, and the Provence interior of M. Fisher, Julia Child, James Beard, and the Reinvention of American Taste by Luke Barr "There is more good food and cooking than ever in America, and more hype, spectacle, money, moralizing, and pontificating, too EventCoordinator. With the deftest of touches, he describes a gathering of She spoke excellent French, but had an American accent; he replied in French. Home cooking was bigger than. Looking for More Great Reads? They had fun! There is something about his Provence convention that just struck me as off - like how he refers to people's full names too often instead of just sticking with the either the first or the last name after the 'character' has been introduced.
