Most of our social interactions involve combining information from both the face and voice of other persons: speech information, but also crucial nonverbal information on the person's identity and affective state. We performed analyses of variance ANOVAs using epsilon corrections for heterogeneity of covariances [ 37 ] throughout where appropriate.

Participants in Experiment 2 were more accurate when the correct matching stimuli but one speaker fSM were amateur actors. We computed separate 2 x 3 ANOVAs per adaptor gender, with factors gender congruency congruent: adaptor and test of the same gender; incongruent: adaptor and test of different gender and adaptor modality.
